Chamundi Hill landslide widens; road shrinks

Team from Indian Institute of Science, Bengaluru, inspects spot; suggests measures for restoration

Mysuru, Nov. 2 (RK&BCT)- A massive restoration work is in store for the Public Works Department (PWD) as the recent landslide that had occurred atop the Chamundi Hill — between View Point junction and Nandi Statue — has been increasing in width and has shrunk the road by over 80 percent.

When the landslide occurred on the night of Oct. 20, 2021, 30 percent of the road had caved in. It now has the potential of taking away the entire road if it rains heavily.

Due to incessant rains, the mud of the retaining wall has collapsed further, taking away most part of the road and the length of the landslip has increased to more than 120 metres. The 2019 landslide was measured at 50 ft. in length and 22 ft. deep and then, a 35-metre wide and 6-metre high concrete wall was constructed at a cost of Rs. 49 lakh.

Now both the estimate and the extent of the repair works will be more. Though the public have complained that the PWD has not taken any measures to prevent further damage even after 10 days of the incident, the officials have reasoned that as the rain continues to lash Mysuru they are not in a position to repair the stretch.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Non-stop torrential rains and resulting floods in Uttarakhand in North India and Kerala in South India recently took a heavy toll on life and property, and are rude reminders of what climate change can do. These are result of global warming — a rise in the earth's atmospheric temperature due to the increased emission of greenhouse gases (GHGs). Climate change has the potential to subject us and our future generations to a range of miseries that include displacements, food disruption, epidemic outbreaks and increased air pollution, and painfully diminish the human population. This apart, we are bound to see a number of species disappear, unable to survive the changes that occur. However, it is not that solutions are not available. What is not is a concerted effort on a war-footing that can defend us against the onslaught of climate change. Measures should include replacing fossil fuels with renewable energy sources, inhibiting industries from taking to carbon emissions and encouraging energy-efficient processes. With repeated incidents of natural calamities affecting India, it is time the country declared war on climate change and led the fight against it.

Japan's flamboyant bike decoration culture

Tokyo: Dekochari is a bicycle decoration movement specific to Japan that is characterised by the use of plywood accessories, chrome plating, elaborate light displays and hi-fi audio systems.

Dekochari can be traced back to the 1970s, when Japan's Dekotora truck decoration trend started gaining traction. Unable to unleash their creative decorating talent on trucks, kids started adapting the same general style to their bicycles, and they ended up creating their very own culture. Dekochari thrived right alongside dekotora, but as the trucks' excessive lighting and extra weight started posing legal problems to drivers, both cultures kind of faded from the roads of Japan and today dekochari bikes are considered rarities.

This cabbage is grown for looks, not taste

Osaka: Unless one is a passionate gardener, the only types of cabbage and kale they know are probably the ones grown as food, but there are quite a few ornamental types of cabbage as well, grown only for their beauty.

If one is looking for something to brighten up the garden in the autumn and winter seasons, ornamental cabbage is definitely an alternative worth considering. While regular kale and cabbage can be traced back 4,000 years, the ornamental types rose to prominence in 17th century Japan, where they became a centerpiece of Japanese gardens. In the early 20th century, the U.S. Department of Agriculture sent Howard Dorsett to China and Japan to look for new plants, and the ornamental kale he saw in Japan was one of his favorite finds. Several varieties were brought to the States and by 1936 they were available to mass markets.

Restore Pattabhirama mural painting in Palace premises

Sir,

I would like to draw the attention of the authorities concerned to restore the mural of Pattabhirama in the premises of Mysore Palace. There is a painting of Pattabhirama on the wall facing Ambujavalli shrine to the right of entrance to Shweta Varahaswamy temple in the Palace premises calling for revival.

It is indeed laudable that the authorities have taken up revival of paintings in the temple area. It is learnt that this particular mural is not in the list of paintings sought to be revived.

Can we hope that the authorities look at this mural adorning the west wall of the temple premises and take steps as necessary for its conservation?

Dist. Rajyotsava Award for 36 achievers

Mysuru District Minister Somashekar bats for use of Kannada in mobile apps

Mysuru, Nov. 2- Minister for Co-operation S.T. Somashekar, who is also Mysuru District-in Charge Minister, has called upon the people of the State to make maximum use of the option to communicate in Kannada in mobile apps.

He was speaking at the 66th Kannada Rajyotsava celebrations organised by the District Administration in front of Kote Anjaneyaswamy Temple at the Palace North Gate here yesterday.

Urging the people of the State to give primacy to Kannada language in mobile apps, Somashekar said that online cab hiring apps and online food delivery apps have the option to communicate in Kannada and all Kannadigas must make use of this facility.

Expressing satisfaction over the increasing use of Kannada script and language on social media and Internet communications, Somashekar observed that increasing use of the language will help it grow and also become popular in fields such as Science and Technology.

He also maintained that the State Government was working towards promotion of Kannada in the digital world by including the language's script in Unicode, which facilitates use of Kannada on mobile phones, making translations and preparation of Kannada Braille. Referring to the use of Kannada in higher education, the Minister noted that there were several subjects in higher education, whose medium of instruction was available in Kannada. The students can also write the exams of these subjects in Kannada, he added.

Continuing, Somashekar said that the State Government, under the National Education Policy (NEP), has permitted four Engineering Colleges to teach Engineering in Kannada.

Appealing the students to make use of this opportunity to promote Kannada in a big way in Science and Technology as well, he observed that this was the first step in imparting technical education at all levels in mother tongue in the State in the coming days. Asserting that Kannada was not a language of any caste, community or creed, Somashekar contended that Kannada was the language of the land, that reflects its culture, traditions, connections and civilization. The Minister also paid rich tributes to towering literary figures such as Kuvempu, Da.Ra. Bendra , D.V. Gundappa etc., and also to other leading personalities who strive for the unification of the State and promotion of Kannada.

Earlier, Somashekar offered puja to Goddess Bhuvaneshwari at the Temple in the Palace premises and later offered floral tributes to the idol of the Goddess at the stage.

The Minister thereafter hoisted the National Flag in front of Kote Anjaneyaswamy Temple amidst the National Anthem played by Police Music Band. Subsequently, he hoisted the Kannada Flag amidst the rendition of Naada Geethe.

Thereafter, Somashekar took salute from Police March Past in which personnel from various Police Units such as KSRP, CAR, DAR, Mounted Police etc., took part.

Split verdict in By-polls

BJP wins in Sindagi, Congress in Hangal

Bengaluru, Nov. 2- In what can be described as a huge setback for Basavaraj Bommai in his first acid test after he took over as the Chief Minister of the State in July last, Opposition Congress wrested the Hangal seat from ruling BJP. However, the BJP won the Sindagi seat with a huge margin of over 31,000 votes against its nearest rival, the Congress.

The Hangal loss means a huge blow to Basavaraj Bommai as the Assembly segment is located in Haveri district, the home district of the Chief Minister. CM Basavaraj Bommai represents Shiggaon Assembly segment, also in Haveri district.

However, the BJP managed to win the Sindagi Assembly segment in Vijayapura district. The by-polls was necessitated in Sindagi by the demise of sitting MLA M.C. Managuli of the JD(S) and the death of C.M. Udasi of the BJP in Hangal. Both M.C. Managuli and C.M. Udasi were former Ministers.

The by-polls to the two Assembly segments was held on Oct. 30 , in which Hangal Assembly segment saw a voter turnout of nearly 70 percent and Sindagi, a near record 84 percent.

The counting of votes was taken up in the respective Assembly segments this morning (8 am). While the Congress surged ahead in Hangal from the beginning, the BJP led in all rounds of counting in Sindagi, right from the first round.

Hangal Congress candidate Srinivas Mane gained lead from the first round and only improved his margin against the BJP candidate Shivaraj Sajjanar in all subsequent rounds. In Sindagi, BJP candidate Ramesh Bhusanur, who started with a good lead right against Congress candidate Ashok Managuli, son of late M.C. Managuli, from the first round, consolidated his lead in all subsequent rounds and went on to win by a huge margin of over 31,000 votes, according to reports.

In Hangal, according to latest reports, Congress candidate Srinivas Mane, a former MLC, won by over 7,000 votes against his BJP rival Shivaraj Sajjanar, who seemed to have failed to make the most of the campaign of the Chief Minister and his Cabinet colleagues.

As far as the JD(S) is concerned, the party came a cropper in both the seats, with the party candidates failing to make any impression on the electorate and losing deposits. Interestingly, the JD(S) had fielded minority community candidates in both the Assembly segments.

Public and residents of Chamundi Hill have expressed concern that if it rains heavily like it rained last week, the entire road might get washed away.

Morning walkers alleged that though the officers promised repair works the very next day of the collapse, nothing was done and even District Minister S.T. Somashekar visited the Hill and left without making any announcements, they said.

Not only this spot but due to continuous rain and relentless flow of water from atop towards the foothill, many stretches of the retaining wall have weakened with damages being reported at Uthanahalli Lake, Devikere and Tavarekatte that need urgent repairs, the villagers said.

Speaking to SOM this morning, PWD Executive Engineer Harsha said that they had apprised the Minister that it was not possible to undertake the works at this stage as it is raining heavily. "Repair works need heavy machinery and it is dangerous to go near the landslip area now. Works can start once the rain completely stops," he said.

A team of geologists and earth scientists from Indian Institute of Science (IISc.), Bengaluru, visited the landslip area and they have given ideas to restore the caved in portion. "As the land has further collapsed with increased length, we will request the IISc. team to visit again after Deepavali and suggest restoration measures. Along with this stretch, we will also examine other vulnerable areas that require attention," he added.

During his visit to Chamundi Hill yesterday, Minister Somashekar said that he had already spoken about the landslip with PWD Minister C.C. Patil and he is expected to visit after Deepavali. All possible steps will be taken to restore the road.

Rain damage: Lack of funds irks MLAs

Mysuru, Nov. 2 (MTY&BCT)- A meeting called by Mysuru District Minister S.T. Somashekar at Zilla Panchayat Hall yesterday to assess rain damage in the district turned into a blame-game session where MLAs from BJP and other political parties trained their guns on the Government for not releasing a single rupee as grants despite severe damages due to continuous downpour and flooding.

As soon as the meeting began, BJP MLAs L. Nagendra and B. Harshavardhan targeted the Government and the District Administration for not releasing money despite severe damages sustained by the people. They were soon joined by MLAs of other parties G.T. Devegowda, K. Mahadev, H.P. Manjunath and S.R. Mahesh who minced no words and blamed the Government for the lapse.

The MLAs said that since the last three years not a single rupee has been released as rain damage grants and as such, hundreds of people are homeless and unable to restore their damaged houses. Successive rains have worsened the situation and the Government has become insensitive, they alleged.

While Mysuru City Corporation has sent a proposal of Rs. 284 crore as rain damage repairs, all the other taluks too have sent proposals worth crores of rupees through Taluk Panchayats and Zilla Panchayats. But none of the proposals have been approved.

Replying to the concerns raised by the MLAs, the Minister said that the extent of damage and the relief measures that are necessary to be taken will be explained to the Chief Minister. Officials told the Minister that two persons died and five heads of livestock succumbed to the rain fury in the district in October. As many as 1,249 houses were damaged, including 34 in October.

Over 67 primary school buildings and 33 Primary Health Centre (PHC) buildings were damaged and crops on 147.96 acres and horticulture crops on 214.97 acres have been damaged.

The meeting discussed permanent measures to be taken for preventing the entry of rainwater into households located in low-lying areas as a lot of houses in the city were flooded with clogged drains overflowing.

Dr. B.S Ajaikumar: Man with a Mission

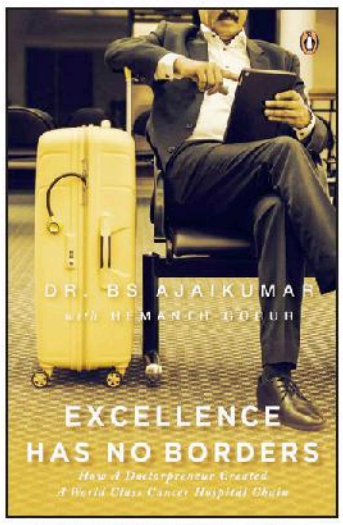
On Sunday, after watching Kannada TV channels showing the burial of Kannada film world's iconic matinee idol Puneeth Rajkumar, who had died of heart attack on Friday (Oct. 29), I came to office to get rid of that melancholic feeling. Very sad indeed. He bloomed as an actor rather early in life as a child artiste and withered too early at age 46.

In the office, I finished reading the book "Excellence Has No Borders" by Dr. B.S. Ajaikumar with Hemanth Gorur. Which means the actual writing was done by the latter. Star of Mysore had already published a review of this book by Dr. Bhamy V. Shenoy of Mysore Grahakara Parishat (MGP) that appeared on Oct. 26, 2021.

Dr. Shenoy wanted to know why the book was titled "Excellence Has No Borders." After reading the book, I too thought likewise. Dr. Ajaikumar was looking beyond the Indian horizon and venturing to establish a brand of hospitals for cancer patients worldwide and call it as Health Care Global, acronym HCG. After reading the book, I thought it was a misnomer to call his venture HCG for it would be perceived as a hospital of general healthcare and not exclusively dedicated to cancer. Which was why some of his venture capitalist financiers, as detailed in the book, had difficulty in getting to know one real character of the venture they were contemplating to finance. I felt he should have christened his healthcare brand (Hospitals) as Cancer Health Care Global (CHCG) or simply Cancer Care Global (CCG).

Since Dr. Bhamy Shenoy has reviewed the book comprehensively touching on important human and business aspects, including sibling suspicions, I will not inflict on my readers a second dose of comments on the same episode.

However, there are many lessons for the professionals like doctors who aspire to become entrepreneurs in their given area of specialisation — like Dr. Ajaikumar, who is a qualified Oncologist.



The cover picture of the book showing Dr. Ajaikumar waiting at an airport with the cabin-box, commonly seen at airports, eloquently represents the roller-coaster travelling done by him to accomplish his mission.

No doubt higher the risk in any business, higher the profit. So also the loss. When one bites more than one can chew and swallow, he is bound to choke and die. We have many cases of people, nay adventurers, venturing to achieve success that is beyond their reach and committing suicide. With humility and modesty, I say, health and wealth are the personal responsibility of each individual. Probably, it is because of this axiom there is a wise saying 'Each for himself and God for all.' Reading this book, I realised the truism of this human experience.

All along his ambitious journey, it is Dr. Ajaikumar who was taking responsibility for planning, finance, negotiating to find the venture capitalists and more. Naturally, much travelling he had to do. It seemed, most of the time he was in the airports flying to America and India any number of times.

I salute him for his high ambition, high-octane energy and above all courage to take a chance and risk. Of course, the whole world loves the winner, failure is an orphan. Dr. Ajaikumar, for now, is a winner and being a Mysurean, we must feel proud of him. I should vouch for his humane healthcare service to Mysureans and to the cancer patients from around Mysuru by establishing his first designated cancer hospital, known as 'Bharath Cancer Hospital' in Hebbal. It was a Godsend those days. Even now it is the hospital of the first call for poor cancer patients.

The book reveals how difficult it was for Dr. Ajaikumar to get a piece of land to set up this hospital.

In 1987, he thought of starting a cancer hospital in India. He decided to have it either in Bengaluru or Mysuru being a Mysurean. He knew the well-known Prof. A.K. Ramanujam of the University of Chicago and on his suggestion went with him to meet the Karnataka Chief Minister, who was in Chicago, on some Government work. Sadly his suggestion was "laughed off." Dr. Ajaikumar writes, "I was told they already had Kidwai for that and that there was no need for anything else."

These are our rulers! Dr. Ajaikumar did not give up, did not accept defeat. He identified a 15-acre land on Nanjangud Road and Mysuru Urban Development Authority (MUDA) allotted it in 1988. However, Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) took objection and media too suspected his intention. He writes, "As the saying goes, 'No good deed goes unpunished.' So a good deed is punished heavily by the city of Mysuru." Reading this, I thought of proposed 'Viveka Smaraka' by Sri Ramakrishna Ashram which is mired in controversy. As Dr. Ajaikumar said in his book, once again a good deed is punished heavily by the city of Mysuru.

Reading Dr. Ajaikumar's account of his trekking expedition to Kangchenjunga and his experience with his Sherpa-helper Aan Pasang who dies "suddenly" and the opinion about our life and death, I could not but remember our Kannada film actor Puneeth Rajkumar who passed away "suddenly" last Friday and how we felt devastated.

Dr. Ajaikumar and his wife Bhagya also go on a trip to rural and semi-rural areas across India. And from what he writes, it seems he got 'enlightened' like Buddha or Yudhisthira (Dharmaraya) in Mahabharata. He remembers the incident with Aan Pasang that had taught him the life lesson about how suddenly things could change and how one needed to be prepared. 'One day you were here and the next day you were gone.' He then recalls one of the many questions the Yaksha asks Yudhisthira in Mahabharata known as 'Yaksha Prashne'.

Question: What is most amazing in the world?

Answer: Every day people die, yet everyone thinks he will live for ever. What is more amazing than this?

Dr. Ajaikumar continues:

"Human life has a self-life. It derives meaning from accomplishments achieved during one's lifetime. For this good health is crucial. For, anything can be bought or repaired with money, but there is only so much money can do when it comes to health." What a profound observation!

Like a sting in the tail, the last paragraph of the last chapter of the book says, "There should be no difference in TREATMENT for the rich and the poor" and advises the (deaf, dumb and blind) government what it should do to reach this goal. It should not be like in our country 'Bail for the rich and jail for the poor.' Did you get me Steve?

Indeed, as Dr. Bhamy Shenoy said, "It was an easy reading book while being a page turner."

May the tribe of service-minded professional entrepreneurs like Dr. Ajaikumar increase. After all, good of mankind is important and we need people like Dr. Ajaikumar to achieve this noble goal.

Mysuru Literature Festival 2021 concludes

Krupakar-Senani takes audience on a wild walk

"Malabar Whistling Thrush's melodious song today reduced to mobile caller tune"

Mysuru, Nov. 2 (BCT)- A befitting finale of the fifth edition and the second virtual edition of the Mysuru Literature Festival 2021 organised by Mysuru Literary Forum and Charitable Trust took place in a hybrid version, going online simultaneously from the live venue on Oct.31.

It was also a session in two languages — Kannada and English with Mysuru's own wildlife photographers, wildlife film-makers and philanthropists, Krupakar-Senani sharing their views. They were ably moderated by Dinesh Basavapatna and Chaduranga Kantharaj Urs.

The session — A walk on the wild side — was gripping as Krupakar-Senani conveyed the subtle message of conservation throughout their conversation and with the stories of their wild experiences, they made the audience ponder about the serious consequences of human greed in the guise of development.

"We are so caught up in the rat race of making assets for our future generation, but what is the value of assets when they cannot enjoy them with fresh air? If development is not inclusive of the environment, we are running into serious trouble," they said.

Krupakar, who recalled how the dense forests in Valparai near Coimbatore became tea estates after humans took over the land, explained the plight of animals like the Long-Tailed Macaques, who mainly live in canopies are today confused, cannot move around as they are only tea estates all around and are struggling to learn to move on the ground.

The most melodious whistle of the Malabar Whistling Thrush, the best songster bird, is today reduced to a caller tune on cell phones, thanks to the diminishing sources like unpolluted streams where the birds actually live. Today these lovely birds are living in slushy polluted water sources, he noted.

Asset-amassing

Speaking about tribals, Krupakar-Senani said that life's lessons can be learnt from the tribals living inside the woods. "Tribal people live for the day and have no concept of assets and they don't make anything for their children. They teach them survival skills keeping in mind the conservation of nature and their surroundings," they said.

The tribals are shy about meeting strangers but they were full of the knowledge of the jungle. They can identify different species of quails just by looking at their tracks in the soil.

Senani had the listeners glued when he vividly explained their encounter with wild dogs, how he and Krupakar were witness to human greed and decided to become advocates for the dogs, which prompted them to do the movie 'Wild Dog Diaries' that took them 15 years to do the six-part series.

Secretive dogs

"The dogs are secretive and shy. Humans have been stealing their kill for years and they hate them for it. The British felt that these wild dogs were decimating animals that they wanted to kill and set a bounty on them. Till the 1970s, thousands of wild dogs were killed. Scientists too felt they were a threat to tigers, forgetting that tigers, leopards or wild dogs have all evolved the same way and all deserve a place in the ecosystem. Now people understand them better," they said.

A short clipping of the film was shown which captivated the audience just like the riveting tales of the duo's tryst with the wild animals and birds did.

"If the Western Ghats are mined, they will stop absorbing rainwater and the rivers of the Deccan Plateau will go dry. The world is a spherical web where every single entity is interconnected. We keep cutting off connections and we do not realise that we have nowhere else to go. A flower evolves not for God or for you. It evolves and gets the colour for itself," the conservationists noted.

Chairperson of Mysuru Literary Forum and Charitable Trust and curator of the Mysuru Literature Festival Shubha Sanjay Urs welcomed the gathering and Rashmi introduced the guests. Sasikala Ramanath proposed a vote of thanks.

Festival viewership

The total number of viewers of the Mysuru Literature Festival has gone up and this year the sessions were live-streamed on Facebook and YouTube. Viewership has crossed the 50,000 mark and stood at 56,000. The Krupakar-Senani session has been picked by colleges as a student project.

Breathing life back into forests

On a voluntary basis, Krupakar and Senani are the show-runners of a non-profit Society called 'Namma Sangha', which is dedicated to conservation by reducing human pressure on the forests of Bandipur Tiger Reserve.

This 18-year-old Society has provided LPG connections to over 38,000 families in 203 villages along the 200-km forest boundary of Bandipur Tiger Reserve through two gas agencies, thereby successfully reducing their dependence on the forests.

The whole objective is to provide an alternative, create a win-win situation, and wean away people from the forests and give it a chance to rejuvenate. This is a completely voluntary effort where even professional consultants like CAs and lawyers work for free.

'Namma Sangha' is now rated as one of the most successful conservation movements in India. It also supports several talented poor rural children especially in their higher education.

WORD OF THE DAY

Facile

Pronunciation: FASS-ul.
Meaning: Too easily accomplished or attained.
Origin: Facile comes from the Latin facilis, meaning "easy," and facere, "to make or do." The adjective can mean "easy" or "easily done," as befits its Latin roots, but it now often adds the meaning of undue haste or shallowness, as in "facile answers to complex questions."
Example: "It feels as though the songs just came to be. They reveal a facile elegance that does not let on the laborious writing and technical work that went into their creation." — Julien A. Luebbers, The Spokesman Review (Spokane, Washington), 20 Aug. 2021.

THE ODD WORD

Fainéant

Puppet ruler; do-nothing; idle person.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Flash in the pan

Meaning: To indicate that something has failed, particularly if it had an impressive beginning.
Origin: The term 'flash in the pan' originated sometime during the late 17th century, when flintlock muskets were used. An attempt to fire a musket that resulted in gunpowder flaring up but no ball firing was referred to as a flash in the pan.
Example: "He only wrote one hit single; his music career was pretty much a flash in the pan."

QUOTE BOX

History is an alternating series of frying pans and fires.— Peter Esterhazy
